

BorgWarner fournit un système de refroidissement de batterie à un constructeur allemand

- Performances des batteries optimisées par les plaques de refroidissement inter-cellules BorgWarner
- Flexibilité du système modulaire pour différentes plateformes de développement
- Les nouveaux produits tirent parti de l'expertise thermique acquise dans le refroidissement par RGE

Auburn Hills, Michigan, 9 février 2023 – BorgWarner fournira à un grand constructeur allemand de véhicules, en Europe et aux États-Unis, des plaques de refroidissement de batterie innovantes destinées à la nouvelle génération de véhicules électriques de ce constructeur. Comparées aux autres solutions, les plaques de refroidissement BorgWarner offrent une capacité de refroidissement dans un ensemble compact plus léger et plus économique. La conception des plaques tient aussi compte des tolérances d'assemblage.

« Nous sommes partenaire technique de ce client depuis plus de 30 ans, et contribuons à de nombreuses nouvelles technologies que le constructeur a intégrées dans ses véhicules, » a déclaré Joe Fadool, President et General Manager, BorgWarner Emissions, Thermal and Turbo Systems. « Nous sommes fiers d'élargir notre relation en concevant des composants de refroidissement pour les systèmes de batterie de leurs nouvelles plateformes de développement de véhicules électriques. »

Les plaques de refroidissement de batterie développées par BorgWarner sont des profilés en aluminium extrudé qui épousent au plus près les contours des rangées de cellules de batterie cylindriques. Cette conception assure un contact optimal avec la surface de la cellule pour assurer un transfert thermique très efficace. Les plaques sont interconnectées à leurs extrémités par une tuyauterie où circule un fluide de refroidissement pour gérer la température des cellules.

Leader mondial de la technologie de refroidissement par recirculation des gaz d'échappement (RGE), BorgWarner est expert en gestion thermique et par conséquent l'innovateur idéal des nouveaux développements sur le marché du refroidissement des batteries. Par ailleurs, ses unités de production mondiales sont le gage d'un approvisionnement fiable des produits conformément aux calendriers de production des clients.
